Let me ever seek thy pleasure!
 Let me ever lay thy praise!
 If the writer were to venture a guess as to the history of the three texts it would be that the magazine has the hymn as originally written: that Mr. Key afterwards saw that the line "Call'd a nailstain'd sinners to thee" in the new verse, and the lack of rhyme between
 "and thee" needed correction, and the close of the hymn needed strengthening, ing, so that he changed the hymn to the form seen in the autograph copy;
 and that the omission of the third

the new third verse there are only two texts. That of the autograph reads is before us; that of the magazine reads (the differences are italicized): —
 "Praise thy Saviour Lord, that drew thee To that cross, new life to give—Call'd a nail-stain'd sinners to thee!
 Made thee look to him and live!
 Praise the grace whose threats alarm'd thee!

The Story of the Hymn I may be recalled that in our study of the hymn "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" reference was made Bishop Heber's favorite project of erary hymn book for the land, a hymn book to con-poetry as well as good dev-
